What is CEM?

The Centre for Evaluation and Monitoring (CEM) at Durham University is one of the largest and longest-established educational research groups in the world. CEM provides robust and reliable assessment data through tools like Yellis, which measure students' progress and predict future performance. By comparing actual results to predicted grades, schools can demonstrate the real value added to students' learning.

These outstanding results, supported by CEM's trusted data, reflect our commitment to nurturing each student's potential, fostering a supportive learning environment, and delivering outstanding education. We are incredibly proud of our students' achievements and grateful to our dedicated staff for their hard work and inspiration
